FOREWORD

Indiana contains many postsecondary education institutions, both state-supported and independent, offering a wide variety of programs at all academic levels. A glance at the institutions listed in this report will give the reader an idea of the many diverse and well-known institutions found in this state.

The state-supported higher education system in Indiana consists of Ball State University, Indiana State University, Indiana University, Purdue University, Vincennes University, and Indiana Vocational Technical College. The highest degree offered by Vincennes University and Indiana Vocational Technical College is the two year associate degree while the other four institutions offer degree levels ranging from the certificate to graduate. Altogether, the six institutions comprise a statewide network of 28 campuses.

The independent colleges and universities, while not part of the state-supported system, provide valuable instruction and service to the people of Indiana. There are 37 independent institutions offering programs ranging from basic trade and technical courses to highly advanced graduate study.

This report is intended to provide an overview of the variety of the programs at each level offered by the post-secondary institutions in Indiana. It is hoped that the information contained herein will prove helpful to prospective students, institutions, and private citizens, both within and outside the state.

INTRODUCTION

This publication contains an inventory of certificate, associate, baccalaureate, and post-baccalaureate programs currently offered by the public and private institutions in Indiana. All listings of programs in this report are grouped, with some modifications, according to the Higher Education General Information Survey (HEGIS) and defined by the U. S. Office of Education in its Taxonomy of Instructional Programs in Higher Education (Washington: National Center for Educational Statistics, 1970).

Conventional divisions of knowledge and training by HEGIS classification include Discipline Divisions such as Agriculture, Biological Sciences, and Social Sciences, and subdivisions called Discipline Specialties (e.g. within Social Sciences are listed History, Geography, and Sociology). In order to accomodate specific programs offered at each institution, Discipline Specialties have been further divided (e.g. within history are listed American History, World History, American/ World History, English History, European History).
In some instances, the inventory expands the HEGIS taxonomy by the addition of new discipline specialties not utilized by HEGIS.

The following names and/or initials are used to identify the academic degrees and the degree levels:

Degree Levels

C - Certificate
A - Associate
B - Baccalaureate
M - Master's
S - Specialist
D - Doctorate

CERTIFICATE AND ASSOCIATE

The certificate degree level consists of a program of two years or less in a prescribed area of study for the purpose of acquiring technical skills. The associate degree level is comprised of at least two but less than four years of post-secondary education which may be either the first two years of a four-year baccalauareate program or a two-year occupational program.

BACCALAUREATE

The baccalaureate degree level includes programs comprised of at least four but not more than five years of college work.

POST-BACCALAUREATE

At the master's level, these are programs requiring one or two years work beyond the baccalaureate level. The specialist degree consists of a program leading to a degree between the master's and the doctorate but is not intended to be a necessary or logical step between these two levels. Degrees included here are Education Specialist (Ed.S.) and Educational Administration (Ed.A.). The doctorate level is comprised of programs leading to a doctorate degree, e.g. Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) or Doctor of Education (Ed.D.). Professional degrees such as Doctor of Medicine (M.D.), Doctor of Dental Surgery (D.D.S.) and Law (L.L.B. or J.D.), are included in the inventory at the post-baccalaureate level.
